Check Point 1

I thought I could create my use cases inside of my project description. In order for them to be more specific and separate from the project description it is moved to it's own section.

Check Point 2

Needed to add more non-functional requirements. In addition, some of my functional requirements were not possible to implement. So, I added and removed entities/functional requirements.

Check Point 3

Forgot to include all entities inside my database. Missed a few and added them. Also added more entities since my database is larger.

Check Point 4 and 5

Did not specify which entity is strong or weak.

Check Point 6

Forgot to submit the link to Canvas, I completely remade my entire EER, and made new inserts. I was having a problem with foreign keys, and it was easier to just restart. Although it is somewhat similar to what it was, it should be very different. Since I changed my entire EER, my forward engineering files and insert files are also different.

Check Point 7

Made the business requirements harder and made queries that involve other entities and not just the user.

Check Point 8

Added examples to discord.
